

If you are looking for ways to get involved, there are vulnerable populations throughout our community who could use your help. Numerous organizations are in need of healthy, youthful volunteers to assist with the COVID-19 response. The City of New Orleans is building a network of volunteers to help with food and supply distribution, clinical and non-clinical support, virtual volunteering, and more. The City is asking that New Orleans' college and university students play an integral part in these efforts.

Visit the City's NOLA Ready website to learn how you can make a difference!

